[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
BEDFORD, VA., May 26.—A disastrous fire occurred last night at the home of William Hackworth, about three miles from here, when his home, with all its contents, and smokehouse containing about 500 nounds of meat were totally destroyed, the members of the family barely escaping. Mr. Hackworth had left home to spend the night, leaving his mother, three sis ters, a brother, and a guest, Miss Wilkes, in the house.

The fire originated in the smokehouse, though there had been no fire there, and, strange to say, there was no odor of burning meat, though this building was consumed. The fire was communicated to the pantry on the porch, where Mr. Hackworth had shut up his dog, the furious barking of
